NAVY ORDERED TO REDOUBLE EFFORTS TO GET SUBMARINES

New Order Sent Out As Result of Torpedoing of the Steamer Montana

CONFERENCE IS HELD

Incident Regarded As Direct Challenge To Roosevelt's Decision

By Kingsbury Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—A high Administration official today disclosed that the United States Navy has been ordered to redouble its efforts to "eliminate" Axis submarines lurking in the North Atlantic waters around Greenland and Iceland.

This new order to American warships on the North Atlantic patrol was sent out as a result of the latest incident in American "defensive" waters—the torpedoing of the American-owned Panama-registered cargo steamer Montana.

Issuance of the order followed a White House conference between President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy Knox at which the torpedoing of the Montana off Greenland on Thursday afternoon was discussed.

Torpedoing of this ship at the entrance to the Danish Straits between Greenland and Iceland is regarded in official quarters in Washington as a direct challenge to the American Government's decision to defend those two North Atlantic outposts, and to keep the sea lanes to them clear of what President Roosevelt has branded as the "rattlesnakes of the Atlantic."

Any Axis submarine now found in those waters is likely to be sunk without warning by the American warships on patrol duty.

The attack on the Montana occurred about 12 hours before President Roosevelt's historic declaration of policy that Axis submarines entering American defensive waters from now on will do so "at their own peril."

Official Washington is waiting to see whether the German Government will order its submarines and surface raiders to withdraw from those waters as a result of the President's warning, or whether Germany will decide to risk

Fleetwings Employees Hear Talk On Eye Protection

At the weekly meeting of the Fleetwings Safety Committee, Thursday, C. L. Boyd, Field Representative of the Royal Indemnity Company, presented a very instructive and interesting talk on the subject of protection of workers' eyes. This talk is one of several that the local aircraft committee group has scheduled in its program to further increase safety in the Fleetwings plant.

Mr. Boyd illustrated dramatically the need for proper safety around machines, by showing with the use of charts, how accidents to eyes happen, emphasizing how such accidents can always be prevented, if the proper precaution is taken. He explained the correct use of goggles and other protective devices.

Fleetwings Safety Committee members, who represent various divisions of the large plant, will transmit by personal contact, the excellent suggestions made by Mr. Boyd. In addition, safety display cards will be posted at strategic spots in the shop; these cards will carry a similar safety message.

King George Surveys Forces

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Under the protective wings of American-made planes and riding in an American-built scout car, King George VI grinned and saluted through the alternating mist and sunshine. He was making a survey of the hardest-hitting "panzer" force yet revealed to the world.

On the plains of Britain's eastern command his neighbors had drawn up for His Majesty a crack new "mailed fist" armored division. Its equipment, stretching out as far as the eye could see along the horizon, revealed every department of this outfit superior to the conception of a typical panzer division given out by Nazi propaganda.

With surprising simplicity but with a tremendous amount of color the King showed a keen interest in this royal armored corps.

He took the salute and asked scores of questions as mile after mile of light tanks, heavy tanks, scout cars, armored cars, Bren gun carriers, anti-aircraft guns, artillery and anti-tank guns, supply vehicles and a completely mobile division of infantry rolled past.

Announce More Sinkings

Berlin, Sept. 13.—Sinking of ten more British freighters and warships by the German Navy and air force was announced today in a further retort to President Roosevelt's speech, as the government-controlled Nazi press taunted him for not declaring outright war against the Reich.

Nazi U-boats, continuing their relentless attacks on a large convoy in the North Atlantic, sank four more British merchantmen totalling 19,000 tons, and three escort vessels, Hitler's headquarters announced.

This brings the German-claimed total from the convoy, originally consisting of 40 vessels, to 31 ships.

Destruction of three more ships was credited to the Nazi air force, in addition to the wrecking of three yesterday.

Thus the two-day "bag" of the U-boats and Nazi warplanes was recorded in Berlin as 37 ships.

The Luftwaffe's latest victories included three transport damaged in an attack on a convoy off Great Yarmouth. "Their loss must be reckoned with," the Germans said.

Announcements of new victories at sea were accompanied by fresh attacks on Mr. Roosevelt's "shoot on sight" radio address.

SLIOTH SERVICE TO BE HELD HERE AT MIDNIGHT

Rev. Jacob G. Abramowitz Will Officiate at Service in Ahavath Achim Synagogue

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

Tonight at midnight the Jewish people throughout the world will observe the traditional Slithoth service. This ritual plays an important role in Jewish tradition in that it is preparatory to the awe-inspiring day of Yom Kippur—Day of Atonement. Slithoth, which literally means penance, is observed by midnight prayers and communal devotion. It signifies Jewish sincerity and self-sacrifice for its high moral and ethical ideals.

The officers of the Ahavath Achim Synagogue have announced that the Rev. Jacob G. Abramowitz has been appointed to officiate at the Slithoth and High Holy Days service at the synagogue, 119 Pond street.

The Rev. Abramowitz comes to Bristol through the recommendations of prominent Philadelphia rabbis. His elementary training was received in Tel Aviv, Palestine, while his higher learning was acquired at Columbia University and at the famous Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary. It was at the seminary that he was inspired to devote himself to Jewish communal activities.

Aside from being a capable Hebrew teacher, the Rev. Abramowitz has done extensive work in experimental adult education. He has also acquired the ability to cope with problems confronting the American Jewish youth, it is said.

Following tonight's services, which start at 12 o'clock, a reception will be held at the synagogue where the Rev. Abramowitz will be introduced to the congregation.

Fate of Leningrad Now Hangs In The Balance

MOSCOW, Sept. 13.—(INS)—The fate of Leningrad, Russia's second city and once its capital, hang in the balance today as Soviet and German forces clashed in bloody combat for its possession.

Vice Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky, chief Moscow spokesman, declared a battle of "incredible ferocity" is raging at the approaches to Leningrad and described the German losses as "tremendous."

"The struggle has assumed such proportions," he said, "and is of such a character that the Germans cannot continue it for long."

Huge air battles accompanied the great ground struggle before Leningrad and it was revealed that British fighting planes—Spitfires and Hurricanes—piloted by Russian airmen are taking a major role in the combat.

DUTIES OF CHAPLAIN TOLD BY MAJOR SOLLA

Activities On Maneuvers Are Graphically Presented By Bristol Clergyman

MEN ARE HEARTENED

The duties of a United States Army chaplain during the period when troops are out on maneuvers, is graphically told in the following letter, written by Major Andrew George Solla, who is with the Headquarters Second Infantry. From his post with the Second Army in the field, Major Solla, who is on leave of absence from duties as pastor of Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, writes as follows:

The Editor, Bristol Courier:

Dear Sir: The folks back home are reading about the maneuvers in the newspapers of the Nation—how the men are placed in opposing sides—the Reds and the Blues—surprise attacks are planned—a certain village or hill is captured—the tanks advance to rout the enemy—gas attacks add to the realism of the mock battle—night matches are made to gain advantage—umpires are in evidence to determine which side has fire superiority—theoretical casualties are reported—yes, the maneuvers are in full swing.

Yet how many of you ever read about the work of the chaplains in the Army—just what are their duties—how do they function during maneuvers. I shall relate my experiences up to the present phase of the present maneuvers.

It started in the early hours of Aug. 25, 1941. Activity started with some of the companies at 2.30 a. m. Then the first car passed the "initial point" (the starting line) at exactly 5.30 a. m. There was a feeling of satisfaction knowing that all of the chaplain's equipment and supplies were packed and on its way—ready for use at any time now. It was all there—the portable organ, the hymnals for outdoor services, an ample supply of stationery for distribution to the men while on the field, boxes of the New Testaments (pocket size edition), the chaplain's guide on flag, religious literature, and the field desk, containing the necessary items for carrying on correspondence on the field.

It took six days to reach our destination. Each evening the entire Division were bivouacked in a pre-arranged area. The chaplains carried with them a list of places (previously arranged) where they could stop while en route to pick up magazines, books, cards and games. This had been arranged through correspondence with the local chapters of the Red Cross in towns

Grand Jury Reports Crowding of Buildings

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 13.—Concluding its duties on Thursday the Grand Jury of the September sessions of Criminal Court filed the following report:

"We had laid before us 20 true bills and three not true bills."

"In visiting the County Home we have found everything in a clean and sanitary condition. However, we recommend the hospital building on the first floor be renovated to conform with other floors, elevator and sun porch to care for the sick inmates confined to their rooms who get very little air and sunshine."

"We suggest accommodations for nurses in a separate building and the home roads be tar-bound by the prison help."

"We visited the Court House and recommend the use of rooms in the basement to store excess law books, providing a staircase from the present room to the basement. Fluorescent lighting and more space in every office."

The Grand Jury is of the opinion that the present Court House is entirely inadequate and should be replaced by a new building.

"In visiting the County Prison we found everything in a clean and sanitary condition. May we suggest prison and County Home officials get together to buy milk, meat and canned goods one from the other for their own consumption. This would represent quite a saving to the county. An additional gas range and two electric water coolers are needed."

"In the Administration Building all the offices are overcrowded. In the Administration Annex Building there are no recommendations."

"Upon application of the County Commissioners a new bridge over Jericho Creek in Upper Makefield township on Woodville to Taylorsville roads, identified as Number 396, at a cost of $2890, was approved."

The Grand Jury thanked President Judge Hiram H. Keller, Judge Calvin S. Boyer, District Attorney Edward G. Biester and his assistant, Willard S. Curtin, for their assistance during the week.

CONSUMER CREDIT CURBS

Regulation of installment buying, which has now been in effect a week, boils down chiefly to increases in down payments and shortening of periods of payment. In twenty-four types of consumer goods, installment buyers must make down payments running from 10 per cent on furniture up to as high as 33 1/3 per cent on automobiles. Also, all installments must be paid within eighteen months.

There doesn't seem to be much wrong with the latter figure. If longer time were taken to pay for something, it might be worn out before all the payments were made.

The installment method is really being tested as a feasible method of merchandising. Since there are arguments on both sides, experience during the next year may demonstrate whether the merits of the plan outweigh accompanying bad features. Under the installment plan, people in low income brackets but with steady wages in prospect can purchase needed articles for which otherwise they would not have the ready cash. They enjoy the use of the article while paying for it. The knowledge that monthly installments must be met should cultivate thrift habits and proper budgeting. And from the business angle, the system stimulates buying and, within certain limits, contributes to economic prosperity.

Abuses sometimes wipe out some or all of the benefits. Often, under high pressure salesmanship or merely from envy, people take the easy way to get things they do not need and cannot afford. Many adopt a standard of living not justified by their income prospects. Then, too, it seems so simple a method to acquire luxuries that often a family takes on two or three high-priced articles on the installment plan. If the man should lose his job or there should be expensive illness in the family, disaster would be hard to avert.

There is one step beyond all this. When the installment habit becomes widespread, the threat of a national depression becomes more acute. What happens then was demonstrated after the 1929 crash. When the collapse came, and money was scarce, thousands of purchasers who had bought "on time" were unable to meet the monthly payments. Commercial firms and finance companies, even if they repossessed their merchandise, took it on the chin.

Today an effort is being made to prevent a crash following a possible abrupt conclusion of the war. Curbs on installment buying are designed to slow up a noticeable inflationary trend and to protect Americans from their own ambition to live beyond their means.

Expect Harold Ickes to let loose another barrage at the press. Papers have printed a picture of the private gas pump on the 350-acre Maryland estate of the oil czar who claims there is a shortage of motor fuel in the East.

Noises resembling the squeals of stuck pigs currently emanating from Berlin provide the first humor of the war.

Denver had the earliest snowfall since 1929, which should give the goose-weather prophets something definite to work on.

"ZAM-ZAM" SURVIVOR IS TO GIVE MESSAGE HERE

Rev. Roy F. Brill, Missionary To Africa, to Speak in Calvary Baptist Church

SUNDAY A. M. AND P. M.

The Rev. Roy F. Brill, missionary to Africa, will be the speaker in Calvary Baptist Church at both the morning and evening services on Sunday. The Rev. Brill served as a missionary in Africa from 1934 until 1939, at which time he returned on a furlough.

He was enroute to the field of service, under the African Inland Mission, aboard the "Zam Zam" when it was sunk on April 17th by Nazi torpedoes. Mr. Brill's entire family, including his wife and three children, were rescued from the sinking ship and taken prisoners to occupied France. After a short stay, they were transferred to Lisbon and were finally released and arrived recently on American shores.

The great need for the preaching of the Gospel is drawing the Brill family, as they have already made plans to sail once again to the field that the Lord has called them to, and they are leaving the United States in the early part of 1942.

Mr. Brill will tell of some of the thrilling experiences with Nazi officers during and after the sinking of the "Zam Zam." Great crowds have gathered in every place that Mr. Brill has told the story, and it is expected that a large gathering will be in Calvary Church.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Lehman Strauss, announces the following services for Sunday: 9:45 a. m., Bible School, under direction of Maris Hart, superintendent; 11, morning worship; 6:45 p. m., prayer group; seven p. m., young peoples' meeting, William Wilson, of Monroe, N. Y., will be the speaker; eight p. m., old-fashioned evangelistic service, good singing, special music, speaker, the Rev. Roy Brill. The pastor will conduct the service of baptism immediately following the message.

Calhern, Outstanding Favorite,
Will Return To The Playhouse

Louis Calhern, who as resident star at the Bucks County Playhouse last season appeared in nine productions and established himself as an outstanding favorite, will return to New Hope next week to act the leading role in Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "The Guardsman." This will be the closing bill of a 15 week season.

Mr. Calhern, who has just completed a 48-week engagement as the star of "Life With Father," in which he had long runs in Boston, Philadelphia and Detroit, is now on vacation from that play prior to starting a trans-continental tour on October 4.

By way of celebrating Calhern's return to the theatre as well as marking the season's close, the theatre's management has assembled an all-star cast. Walter Slezak and Haila Stoddard, who are starred this week in "The Play's the Thing," have consented to remain over for next week's bill, as has also Edith King, who last week starred in "Old Acquaintance." Each of these players has appeared in numerous productions this season as stars in their own right.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley, Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church)

O God, our Father, we thank Thee that we may come to Thee. Though Thou art holy, and we know how unfit we are to present ourselves before Thee, yet, O Saviour, Thy sufferings and death for us give the precious knowledge that Thou dost love and will forgive us. We thank Thee we may come so freely and tell Thee all that is in our hearts. We are deeply conscious of our weakness; we pray for strength and power. Many times we fail to do what we should; help us to make our lives useful and helpful to others and a glory unto Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

men at the same time, "Tom, Dick and Harry," which comes to the local screen Sunday, stars the lovely Ginger Rogers in a sparkling comedy portrayal. George Murphy, Alan Marshall and Burgess Meredith appear opposite the versatile star whose current light characterization is in direct contrast to her heavier, more dramatic performance in "Kitty Foyle," for which she won the recent Academy Award.

The sprightly story presents Ginger as a dreamy, romantic telephone operator who is engaged to George Murphy, a "go-getting" salesman. Ginger secretly yearns to meet Alan Marshall, son of the town's wealthiest man, whose swanky car is the envy of every male in the town. On her way home from work one evening, the expensive auto stops for a signal and the young lady boldly steps in. Later she discovers that the young man is not the scion of wealth, but merely a garage mechanic.

Robert Taylor, highly publicized as a great screen lover, had a complaint to register. The script writers never let him get the girl any more.

"What is this—a conspiracy?" Taylor asked, after completing his starring role in "Billy the Kid," now at the Ritz Theatre.

"There's always somebody in the final fadeout, but I'm not there. I've been losing girls steadily in the last four pictures. Where is it all going to end?"

Save as you earn.

Do not blame the Government in years to come because you did not save when you were able to do so.

When our nation was young we were told to "Save for a rainy day."

Those days come in all nations and all families.

Closed factories, sickness, weddings, funerals. Then is when savings are useful.

Will you have yours ready when the necessity arises?

Five Dollars a month saved will produce $1,000 in less than twelve years.

CAMPION LEAVES AND TELLS SCRIBE TO FORGET HIM

"There He Is, Over There," Says Campion, "He's The New Coach"

FORGET OTHERS, TOO
Former High School Coach
Gives Out Some Good Advice

By Jack Gill

Parting shots are sometimes sentimental. Tommy Campion left Bristol with a statement that was really "big." The scene was the coaches' office at the high school. It's so small it always seems cramped. It was hard to breathe within the inner confines after ball games. Everybody came in to talk and brought along his friend and brother's uncle. Campion, well built and freshened from a recent shower, walked back and forth picking up his belongings. He offered the new mentor, Clarence Bartholomew, his textbooks and other stray bits of paraphernalia that would be of little use in Uncle Sam's Navy. It's hard to leave an old spot. Like an old mechanic who has been pensioned off by his firm, Campion seemed a bit awkward. Sags Sagolla and Carm Gullato, a couple of former grid greats, and some students were hanging around. One by one Campion's proteges, boys who had fought hammer and tong for him on the field, came in to shake his hand and say "so long."

Campion's last official words to this scribe were, "There he is over there, Jack, he's the new coach. Forget me. And forget those other guys who were here before."

Which may be a good idea. Campion, who'll be an ensign very shortly, will now patrol Uncle Sam's seas, a big job during these furious moments. No coach ever fought harder to win than the former Penn State grad. He'll make a creditable addition to the fighting forces of the nation. He leaves a host of friends behind.

Bartholomew has a heavy job before him. Bristol has a large squad and the Penn graduate has no assistants. But for a few weeks Sags Sagolla, who was a lot of back here some years ago, will assist him in rounding the Cards into shape. Sagolla will then leave for Stroudsburg, where he will graduate this term.

Remember Ed Moylan, the kid from Trenton who swept through last year's Bristol Invitation Tennis Tournament and who brought the curtain down on Herb Lawrence's great career. Well last week he lost a big time match to gifted Wayne Sabin, 6-3, 6-3, 7-9, 6-2. There's a story behind that match of human interest intrigue. In an early tourney in New York in July, Moylan was playing Frank Mehner, of Utah. He wasn't doing so well, having lost the first set at 6-2. Mehner was using a floating lob and capitalized on the kids errors. Finally Sabin walked over and shouted to Ed, "Play him at his own game, Eddie." Surprised, Moylan shouted back an "O. K." Using soft lobs, Moylan waited for openings and smashed his hard one in for valuable points. Previously, he tried to whack the daylight out of Mehner's floaters, erring often. It was the same Sabin on the other side of the net last week, but he wasn't handing out free advice. Maybe another year and Moylan will be up with the best.

Edgar Paxson, who won the Langhorne Country Club's caddy tournament four successive years in his younger days, copped the club championship at the lay-out two weeks ago. In carding a spicy 68, Paxson displayed enough golf form to be rated as a likely prospect in the Trenton District Open. This is his first year in district golfing circles. His most valuable asset is his long driving ability.

Jimmy Yeager quit Temple University, where he starred as a sophomore back last year. The ace Morrisville back is working in Trenton. . . . Three regulars, upon whom Coach Charley Beck counted on to return to school this year at Langhorne, will not be back. . . . One has appendicitis, the other found a defense job and the third contracted appendicitis before practice started. . . . All were varsity men last year. . . . Morrisville opens next Friday against the Deaf School under the lights on Robert Morris Field. . . . Danny DiMidio is carving himself a respectable position as a sophomore at State this fall. . . . The Langhorne Rod and Gun club may present a mammoth district open shoot in October. . . . Johnny McGrath continued his winning ways in the Rohm and Haas tennis tourney by beating Jules Gouza, 6-2, 6-1. . . . Pearson beat Podroza, 6-3, 6-2. . . . The finals will not be played until next week.

Duties of Chaplain Told By Major Solla

through which the convoy passed. Ample time had been allowed so that folks could contribute their magazines, etc., for this purpose. As a result a good supply was awaiting when the chaplains called for them. Each evening in camp an announcement was made over the public address system that the men could obtain free magazines by coming to the chaplain's tent designated by the chaplain's flag flying high above it. You can't fail to find it, just look for a white cross against a blue background. Since many hundreds of magazines had been collected each day, the chaplain's car would be seen driving around the bivouac area, extending for large area to accommodate thousands of men, leaving a large bundle of reading matter for the various companies. The assortment was quite varied—every man to his liking—world news events, western thrillers, detective stories, science magazines, comics, religious periodicals, and all of the popular weekly and monthly magazines which you folks are accustomed to see on the news stands.

It cheered the chaplains to witness the wonderful reception the men received while passing through the towns. Everywhere crowds lined the sidewalks to cheer the men. Sometimes peaches, apples, cookies, popcorn, and cigarettes were passed out to the men driving through. In some towns the chaplain received the hearty co-operation of the community to arrange dances for the overnight stop. Facilities for showers were made available in schools, city halls and auditoriums.

On the Sabbath Day four or five services were planned to enable the men to attend at various areas and time. A schedule was sent to the different companies so that the men The Norristown Garden Club will hold would have knowledge of the service, its exhibit on September 16th.

Advantage was taken of the public address system so that more men could be reached.

Occasionally the chaplains would stop in the various towns to talk with the local minister. On one occasion the chaplain was especially impressed. In the town of Smackover, Arkansas, the chaplain witnessed the Sunday evening service at the Baptist Church. A big attendance was noted. That evening the members of the school faculty and the board consecrated themselves to the task of teaching the children. It was most commendable that they bore witness to the fact that they needed the guidance of God to furnish children with an education.

The everyday duties of the chaplain are varied indeed. Problems of the men are brought to him. A problem solved is a boost to the morale of the Army.

MAJOR ANDREW G. SOLLA,
Chaplain's Corps.

outright naval warfare with the United States.

The attack on the Montana occurred approximately 40 miles north by north west of the spot where a sister ship, the S. S. Sessa, was sunk by torpedo and shellfire on August 17th.

Details concerning the torpedoing of the Montana, formerly the Danish liner Paula, still are meagre.

The first report received by the State Department merely said the ship had been observed by a British aircraft to have been torpedoed at 1:45 p. m. Greenwich central time; about 8.45 a. s. t. The crew was seen taking to boats.

No further details have been made public, but it is assumed that the crew, if their lifeboats were able to remain afloat, must have been picked up by now by one of the British or American patrol ships that doubtless rushed to the scene following word of the attack.

First word of the sinking of the Montana was received by President Roosevelt while he was presiding over a cabinet meeting at the White House. The President read the message to the Cabinet.

Harold West, Trenton, chairman of the program committee, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Dr. VanVoorhees, of the research department at Princeton University. Dr. VanVoorhees, who has as one of his hobbies the growing of gladioli, gave an interesting talk about them. In order to illustrate his points he used a number of gladioli taken from his gardens.

Briefly Dr. VanVoorhees, who has been cultivating gladioli for about 12 years, spoke of their classifications and described the different types of florets on the stems. At the close of his address he answered a number of questions relating to the planting and cultivation of gladioli.

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.
